

SCIENTIST POSITION at the IMDEA Software Institute

The IMDEA Software Institute (Madrid Institute for Advanced Studies in Software Development Technologies) is a non-profit, independent research institute, promoted by the Regional Government of Madrid (Spain) to carry out research in Software Development Science and Technology. IMDEA Software is committed to excellence in research by attracting talent from all over the world and to foster technology transfer to the industrial sector in a truly international environment. More information about the activities of the Institute can be found at <http://software.imdea.org>.

IMDEA Software Institute is looking for a Senior Scientist (tenured position) with expertise in the following areas:

- Interactive theorem proving.
- Separation logic.
- Dependent types.

Candidates should hold a doctoral degree in Computer Science, an I3 Certificate or equivalent, demonstrated experience in projects, and a strong ability to raise research funds. He/she should demonstrate the ability to carry out independent research, which combines high quality scientific results with applications and technology transfer, leadership to develop an independent group within the institute's framework of research activities, and good communication skills.

Prestigious fellowships (Ramon y Cajal, Marie Curie, etc.) and awards, as well as experience in scientific evaluation, and evidence of high service to the scientific community will also be highly valued.

Interested candidates should submit their curriculum vitae by e-mail to <mailto: hiring@software.imdea.org> with reference PS-01 before November 23, 2015.